Doing business easily in Africa!

What is it about?

Connecting foreign companies to realistic resources and business cultural realities that simplify their business in Africa.

Why an intervention?

Many companies based in developed countries are setting their sights on Africa as a new frontier for business. Reasons of their business interest include improved political environments, above-average GDP growth rates and the promise of rich opportunities in the continent where everything still needs to be developed from scratch. However, Africa's countries – like any others emerging economies – are tricky terrain to enter.

What does it change?

- Quicker access to accurate business information
- Authentic and accurate knowledge on the current situations on the ground
- Active support on the ground
- Higher business connection
